Please note that the information outlined below refers to the general guidelines but your institution may have agreed a variation to this. If in doubt, please check with your librarian.

A. Access, use and your responsibilities

You may access, download, store, search and print hard copies of text. Copying must be limited to making a single printed copy or electronic copies of a reasonable number of individual articles, chapters or other similar items. No text may be made available to non-Authorized users, either for commercial reward or free of charge.

Authorized users in commercial organizations have access solely for internal research, testing or training purposes or for personal use in accordance with these terms and conditions.

Authorized users in educational institutions have access solely for private study or research for a non-commercial purpose. Such authorized users may use the service for educational resources such as 'course packs' provided that electronic copies are removed or deleted at the end of the semester or term in which the relevant course ends. Such authorized users may make brief quotations from the content of the journals, with the customary acknowledgement of the source, and copy and transmit content from individual online articles in 'person to person' and non-systematic scholarly exchanges of information.

You may not alter, recompile, resell, redistribute, supply, publish or republish (beyond the brief quotations permitted above) or engage in systematic or programmatic copying, any Journal text, output, search results or other information from any Journal, including, without limitation, copyright, proprietary or other legal notices, in any form or medium. Downloading an entire issue of a journal, systematic downloading, service bureau redistribution services, posting to file-sharing sites, printing for a for-fee-service purpose, document delivery services and/or the systematic making of print or electronic copies for transmission to non-Authorized users are prohibited. All rights not expressly granted are reserved to L & H Scientific.
